What Happens When Roe v. Wade Falls?

In the Summer Edition of the Right to Life of Michigan News, our front page story was about the importance of the U.S. Senate primary race. The article said the race may prove to be a key to overturning Roe v. Wade. Well, we’re here! Or, perhaps, at the beginning of the end of Roe v. Wade.

On June 27, U.S. Supreme Court Justice Anthony Kennedy rocked the political world by announcing his retirement. Long considered the “swing justice” on the Supreme Court, his subjective personal opinions made the difference on many cases, including abortion. While he proved to be the pivotal vote in upholding our nation’s ban on the barbaric partial-birth abortion procedure, he ultimately supported Roe v. Wade and Doe v. Bolton, which together gave us abortion-on-demand through all nine months of pregnancy.

At the time of printing, Judge Brett Kavanaugh’s nomination hearings will have likely ended, and he may be our nation’s newest U.S. Supreme Court justice, or his nomination may be stalled by one or two votes in the U.S. Senate. This razor-thin margin for Judge Kavanaugh or the next nominee is directly in your hands, as Michigan votes on November 6 whether to send pro-abortion Senator Debbie Stabenow back for another six years or send prolife candidate John James to represent us.

Will Judge Brett Kavanaugh be the fifth vote to overturn Roe v. Wade? Nobody knows for sure. Justice Clarence Thomas is the only one with a recorded vote in favor of overturning Roe. Justices Alito, Gorsuch, and Roberts have never been part of pro-abortion decisions, but haven’t faced Roe v. Wade directly yet.

Will they all have the courage to make the judicially-correct decision in the face of a zealous “politically-correct” frenzy from pro-abortion politicians and a biased media? There is no appealing to the four pro-abortion justices on the Supreme Court; they would overturn the entire U.S. Constitution if necessary to defend abortion-on-demand.

If five justices do have the courage to do the right thing; if the corrupt foundation holding up abortion-on-demand no longer has the strength to sustain itself on the backs of millions of our own children, then our work there is finished—and a whole new realm of opportunities and challenges will face us.

The day after Roe v. Wade falls, nothing will happen at first. The U.S. Supreme Court will fade into the background as voters regain their rightful place. What happens on the issue of abortion will then be dictated by public opinion and our democratic process, not by five biased individuals. Where does the public stand?

Polling consistently shows that most Americans reject abortion-on-demand through all nine months of pregnancy. The most recent Gallup poll on abortion shows majorities of Americans would ban late-term abortions and abortions targeted at children of Down syndrome. Many other abortion restrictions routinely show high public support.

The most stunning result of the recent Gallup poll is one that will never be reported by our national media, which is generally in thrall to the abortion industry. Only 45 percent of Americans in the poll said abortion should be legal in the first trimester if the woman doesn’t want the child for any reason—that’s the reason for more than 90 percent of abortions. We could save about 900,000 lives a year if abortion law directly reflected American public opinion.

That result isn’t so stunning to people who regularly follow public opinions about abortion, but it’s a perfect example of the challenges facing the prolife movement when Roe falls. While the public generally does not support what Roe v. Wade did, false narratives are pushed to demoralize and confuse the public; that won’t change once Roe falls.

What will ultimately happen? That all depends on you. If prolife people can improve efforts to reach the public with a life-affirming message, if they remain active in state capitols, if they continue to reach women and men facing crisis pregnancies, then we’ll have the opportunity to restore many legal protections for unborn children. In some states, like Michigan, we’ll have the opportunity to protect all of them soon after Roe falls.

If prolife people become complacent or ambivalent after Roe falls, then nothing significant will change. A few more important and popular restrictions may be passed, but abortion-on-demand will remain, and millions more lives will be lost. What sort of prolife people will we be here in Michigan?
Make the real election difference

By Barbara Listing, President
Right to Life of Michigan

It is the day after the 2018 General Election. The tight gubernatorial race has finally been declared and the winner is speaking with reporters saying, “I would like to enshrine abortion rights in the Constitution, but first things first: I will focus on eliminating the current statute that bars abortion.” Is this the governor Michigan prolifers want?

These pro-abortion sentiments were expressed by the Democratic gubernatorial candidate Gretchen Whitmer this summer during a press event as she outlined her “abortion rights” platform.

Whitmer has pledged if she is elected Governor she will:

• “Fight like hell” to pass state laws that will protect women’s legal right to control their bodies…. (We know this translates into abortion-on-demand.)
• Ending the 24-hour waiting period on abortions.
• Forcing all health insurance policies to provide abortion coverage.
• Repealing the Michigan law which is still in place banning abortions except to save the life of the mother. This law is only protected by the U.S. Supreme Court’s Roe v. Wade decision.

The pro-abortion forces have their dream candidate, a woman who as a state senator voted for partial-birth abortions, is in favor of tax dollars for abortion and sees abortion as a necessary for women to succeed.

Whitmer’s candidacy could be overwhelming and discouraging if we didn’t too have a dream candidate, a prolife candidate to champion our cause. Bill Schuette, the Republican candidate for Governor, is a man admired and well known to Michigan prolifers. Throughout his career, Bill has voted for and defended prolife laws. He is an advocate for those who believe in the sanctity of human life.

In a few weeks, the voters will make their choice for governor, U.S. senator, the Michigan Supreme Court, the U.S. House of Representatives, state legislators plus local races. There is much at stake for the unborn and the elderly frail. There is much at stake for the Michigan prolife movement.

I firmly believe if voters going into the voting booth knew the pro-abortion candidates supported abortion without restrictions, wanted taxpayers to pay for all abortions, wanted secret teen abortions and were in favor of barbaric partial-birth abortions, voters would abandon the pro-abortion candidates and Stand for Life.

Now, it is the responsibility of all prolifers to become engaged in informing our fellow citizens of what a radical pro-abortion candidate like Gretchen Whitmer means for the future of Michigan. Please join me in actively campaigning for the prolife alternative, Bill Schuette, who will promote the dignity and value of innocent human life.

When asked by a reporter what he stood for, the Russian author Aleksandr Solzhenitsyn said, “Those who have lived in the most terrible conditions... understand that between good and evil there is an irreconcilable contradiction.” That is what faces us in this election: the evil of abortion versus the undeniable value of each and every human life, born and unborn.

Downriver Diaper Drive

From July 30th to August 5th, our Wayne County Educational Resource Center held a week-long diaper drive. Upper Downriver Right to Life was hard at work to assist with spreading word about the event, handing out flyers, and successfully recruiting many supporters! The diaper drive collected approximately 60 packages of diapers, as well as cans of baby formula and baby wipes. The diapers, formula, and wipes were given to the Lincoln Park Crisis Pregnancy Center to be distributed to the many parents in the community who have a difficult time affording baby essentials such as diapers.

No Marlette-ing Up

For more than 10 years, Right to Life of Sanilac County has participated in the Country Fair Days parade in Marlette, and this year was no exception. At the parade this July 21st, they handed out voter information, door hangers with election information, as well as candy, prolife flying discs and flyers for their Precious Baby Contest. They received many cheers from people thanking them for being a part of the festivities. Participating in parades is a great way to spread the prolife message and get out the vote!

Live from Ludington, it’s Friday Night

Mason County Right to Life hosted a booth at Ludington’s street fair, Friday Night Live, three times this summer. The street fair takes place during a few Friday evenings each summer, and attracts thousands of people with music, food, and fair booths. Mason County Right to Life’s booth attracted large amounts of people with their “Vote Prolife” sign. They had fetal models on display, handed out fact sheets and election information, and even offered face painting! The booth was popular with the crowd, sparking many interesting conversations and opportunities to spread the prolife mission.

You’ve heard this before, but it bears repeating: elections have consequences.

One of our main goals besides restoring legal protection for the unborn is to direct state and federal funding away from Planned Parenthood. In June, we came close to that goal as prolife legislators successfully placed language in the Michigan budget that directs the department to prioritize family planning grants by county and away from Planned Parenthood.

Unfortunately, although the Governor signed the budget, he immediately issued a “non-enforcement” letter telling his Executive Branch to disregard the language and continue handing millions of dollars of hard earned tax money to Planned Parenthood, so they can shore up their operations and perform more abortions.

A law we passed in 2002 directs the state Department of Health and Human Services to prioritize spending on family planning services to non-abortion providers. Since that time, it has become evident that either the employees at DHHS don’t know how to prioritize, or they were not following the law.

Over the past few years, legislators have added language to the state budget to remove all state funding from abortion providers. However, most tax dollars sent to Planned Parenthood is federal “pass-through” money. Pass-through dollars come from the federal government and go to the states to provide funding for specific programs such as family planning (Title X) or maternal and child health services. Since these programs involve free or low-cost contraception, a lot of the money gets funneled to Planned Parenthood.

Our budget language didn’t change the law, it simply clarified that Planned Parenthood should not be receiving money in counties where the county health department was providing family planning services. We discovered that Planned Parenthood was receiving one-third of all the Title X dollars regardless of need or priority. For example, in Emmet County in Northern Michigan, both the county health department and the Planned Parenthood receive federal pass through money to provide family planning services, while in 14 other counties there is no provider at all!

The language inserted by prolife legislators would have directed money away from Planned Parenthood and to the county health departments in the 14 counties with no services, but Governor Snyder decided not to enforce that.

We need a 100% prolife Governor who will sign prolife legislation, enforce prolife laws, and who will appoint people within the departments who will follow those laws. This fall, voters will have a clear choice between a candidate who is radically pro-abortion or one who is solidly prolife. Passing prolife legislation that protects human life also requires prolife legislators in our state House and Senate. Please keep this in mind as you make your way to the polls in November.

Choose wisely; lives depend on it!
Where do the candidates for GOVERNOR stand on life?

1. RIGHT TO LIFE

BILL SCHUETTE believes unborn children have a right to life. Consistently protected unborn children and has closed two abortion clinics who were breaking the law.

GRETCHEL WHITMER has stood for abortion-on-demand at any time and for any reason in the state legislature. She has voted multiple times against bans on partial-birth abortions.

2. COERCIVE ABORTIONS

BILL SCHUETTE voted for informed consent requirements, 24-hour waiting periods so women have time to learn the facts before getting an abortion, and prohibitions on abortion prepayment.

GRETCHEL WHITMER voted against a prohibition on prepayment for abortions so that women feel compelled to go through with the procedure, even if they changed their minds.

3. TAX FUNDING OF ABORTION

BILL SCHUETTE voted against the use of Medicaid dollars for abortions and voted for legislation that prioritizes family planning dollars away from facilities that provide abortions.

GRETCHEL WHITMER stated that she would fund Planned Parenthood and other abortion providers as governor. Voted to force health insurance policies to mandate abortion coverage.

4. VOTING RECORDS

BILL SCHUETTE has a 100% prolife voting record stretching back to his first days in Congress in 1985.

GRETCHEL WHITMER voted against prolife legislation consistently, including making coercive abortions a crime, abortion clinics regulations, and banning the barbaric partial-birth abortion procedure.

5. ENDORSEMENTS

BILL SCHUETTE is endorsed by the Right to Life of Michigan PAC. Endorsed by prolife President Donald Trump and prolife Vice President Mike Pence.

GRETCHEL WHITMER is endorsed consistently by pro-abortion groups Planned Parenthood and EMILY'S List.

Where do the U.S. SENATE candidates stand on life?

1. ABORTION

JOHN JAMES “I want to speak for those who have no voice. I want to fight for those who can’t fight for themselves and I can’t imagine a more vulnerable group of people than our unborn children.”

DEBBIE STABENOW has been a consistent supporter of abortion for her more than 30 years in office, including keeping late-term abortions legal, and opposing parental consent laws for minors teens seeking abortions.

2. TAX FUNDING OF ABORTION

JOHN JAMES supports efforts to defund abortion providers like Planned Parenthood, which annually receives more than 500 million dollars in taxpayer funding.

DEBBIE STABENOW voted repeatedly to give millions in taxpayer dollars to abortion providers. Voted to force Michigan taxpayers to pay directly for abortions through Medicaid in 1987.

3. EUTHANASIA/DOCTOR-PRESCRIBED SUICIDE

DEBBIE STABENOW voted in the Michigan Legislature against banning doctor-prescribed suicide. In Congress, she voted against a ban on giving federally-controlled substances to suicidal patients.

4. SUPREME COURT JUSTICES

JOHN JAMES “I will fight to preserve separation of powers...and will approve Justices who will interpret the constitution as written.”

DEBBIE STABENOW voted to confirm pro-abortion Supreme Court Justices Sonia Sotomayor and Elena Kagan. Voted against the confirmation of prolife Supreme Court Justice Neil Gorsuch.

5. ENDORSEMENTS

JOHN JAMES is endorsed by Right to Life of Michigan PAC, the National Right to Life Committee, and Susan B. Anthony’s List.

DEBBIE STABENOW has been endorsed multiple times by leading abortion provider Planned Parenthood. She has also been endorsed by NARAL Pro-Choice America.

New Grants to Seven Metro Detroit Pregnancy Centers

It is an important time to be a pregnancy help center in Metro Detroit. With more than 40 percent of abortions in the state of Michigan happening in Detroit, prolife pregnancy help centers are doing crucial work on the front lines to give women support in choosing life.

In the last year, Right to Life of Michigan has further developed our relationship with the pregnancy help centers in Detroit, including giving grant money to support their work in 2017. While most pregnancy centers across the state have vibrant community support, there is no Right to Life of Michigan affiliate inside the city of Detroit, where the need is most dire.

There were seven pregnancy centers who received grant money in 2018: Image of God Crisis Pregnancy Center of SW Detroit, Image of God Crisis Pregnancy Center of SE Detroit, Care Net Pregnancy Center Detroit, Pregnancy Aid Inc., ICU Birth Choice, Lincoln Crisis Pregnancy Center, and Detroit Pregnancy Test and Help Center.

On July 25, Right to Life of Michigan staff visited the three new grantees in 2018 to award them their grants and hear their stories of the people they impact and lives they save.

First, we arrived at Lincoln Park Crisis Pregnancy Center, located on the southern side of Detroit. We received a tour of their center and learned all their items come from community donations and the center is run solely by volunteers. They still manage to be open five days a week! The grant money they received will help them set up a safe system to receive online donations.

The second center we visited was the Detroit Pregnancy Test and Help Center. This center is located only two doors away from Summit Medical Center, the largest abortion provider in Detroit. Their new building is being renovated and offers a beacon of hope near the most infamous abortion facility in the state.

Our last visit was to ICU Birth Choice. This center is unique because it is a mobile center located in an RV. With a mobile location that has space for counseling and support—as well as an ultrasound machine—the center can serve multiple areas.

Taking the First Steps of Motherhood

Are you pregnant? Are you asking yourself how you can do this? There are a lot of people and organizations in Detroit eager to help make motherhood work for you.

Luke Pardue, Worthy of Life

It has been ten years since we first met Martina Pardue and her son, Luke. Since we last talked to her, Luke has been thriving, growing, and has even become a big brother.

When Martina was just 10 weeks pregnant she was told her son might have Down syndrome. The doctor who performed the amniocentesis test offered abortion as an option for Luke. Even with his diagnosis, Martina and her husband always knew Luke belonged in this world.

With a more recent focus on Down syndrome in the media, it is important to share the stories of people with Down syndrome who have touched those around them. Sadly, many in society view those with Down syndrome as less than a full person.

“Down syndrome is not a bad thing,” Martina said. “It bothered me when he was born, and it still bothers me today that people think that.”

Studies show that anywhere between 61% to 93% of children diagnosed with Down syndrome in the womb are aborted. Those children never had the chance at life that Luke is enjoying today.

Luke is 11 years old and thriving. He will be starting 6th grade in the fall and is mainstreamed and integrated into a general education classroom. This past year he even received straight A’s. He excels at reading, which he learned at 18 months, and is a great speller. He plays soccer, participates in karate and enjoys American Ninja Warrior-style obstacle courses.

Martina said Luke is doing so well that some of the kids in his class have been known to try to cheat off of him. She’s not too worried, though.

“When I hear about kids trying to cheat off him, I just laugh,” Martina said. “I think it’s hysterical.”

Children dreading geography tests on state capitals have no greater friend than Luke. Martina said Luke has a talent to memorize things quickly. Luke was able to learn all the United States and their capitals just by looking at a map for 10 minutes.

“You can tell him a capitol, and he will tell you a state, or you can tell him a state and he will tell you the capitol,” Martina said.

At school the kids adore Luke. At recess he also enjoys playing basketball or swinging with his friends.

“The girls adore him,” Martina said. “I think I am in trouble when he gets to high school. They fight over who is going to push him on the swings.”

Life with Down syndrome does have its challenges.

“Everybody with Down syndrome is different,” Martina said. “He is high functioning, but it is a lot of work. My husband and I have worked hard to capitalize on everything he could do. I would never tell him he couldn’t do anything.”

Martina said she is worried about when Luke moves into middle school soon. Some of his current classmates who have been around him and love him will be there to give him a high five in the halls. Other classmates might not have been exposed to someone with Down syndrome before, however.

“Fear is the worst thing in the world because it stops people,” Martina said.

Luke is a shining light to more than just his parents and little brother. He has managed to save a life, simply by being Luke.

“I said it 10 years ago, and I still say it today: Luke has accomplished more in his life than I ever will,” Martina said.
What’s the Difference?

Wills and living trusts are similar, yet different. A will is a legal document that provides specific instructions to the probate court judge concerning how, when and to whom your assets should be distributed after your death.

A living trust manages your assets during your lifetime, facilitates an effective distribution of your estate after death, and can avoid probate court in many cases.

Benefits of a Will:
• Ensures your control over the distribution of your hard-earned assets at the time of death.

Wills and living trusts are similar, yet different. A will is a legal document that provides specific instructions to the probate court judge concerning how, when and to whom your assets should be distributed after your death.

A living trust manages your assets during your lifetime, facilitates an effective distribution of your estate after death, and can avoid probate court in many cases.

Supreme Court Supports Free Speech in NIFLA v. Becerra

In a 5-4 decision written by Justice Clarence Thomas, the U.S. Supreme Court struck down a controversial 2015 California law that would have forced the more than 200 prolife crisis pregnancy centers in the state to advertise for free abortions.

The case, NIFLA v. Becerra, challenged the law’s requirement that the prolife pregnancy centers speak against their personal convictions on the issue of abortion. The law’s injustice also went further by specifically targeting just the prolife crisis pregnancy centers who opposed abortion. The law didn’t apply generally to any other health facility.

In the majority opinion, the U.S. Supreme Court said the law violated the First Amendment: the government can’t compel people to speak against their beliefs.

During the oral arguments several of the pro-abortion justices expressed skepticism about California’s law, specifically about the targeted nature of it. However, the final vote by the pro-abortion justices as on the side of the California law. When it came down to it, none of the pro-abortion justices were willing to cross over and uphold the First Amendment for prolife pregnancy centers.

This is an important win for prolife advocates all over the United States. Prolife pregnancy centers are under assault in more places than just California, including legislation introduced in the Michigan Legislature by the pro-abortion minority.

If the decision would have gone the other way, prolife pregnancy centers in any state with a pro-abortion majority could find themselves practically unable to advertise their services without being forced to promote the taking of human life.
